

Take to the streets for climate action

Walk Against Warming
12 midday, THIS SUNDAY
Belmore Park - right across the road from Central Station
Bring your friends, banners and placards!

In the lead-up to the federal election, we're asking Australia's political leaders to: "Walk with the people, not the big polluters"

Let's put an end to the political delays and backflips on climate action, rising pollution and the free ride for the big polluters. Check out the Walk Against Warming website here .

At the last federal election, millions of Australians voted for a government who would take action on climate change. Instead, we got more political delays and backflips, rising pollution and a free ride for the big polluters. So once again, we are pleased to announce that every State and Territory in Australia will be taking to the streets for Walk Against Warming 2010 to tell our leaders: "Walk with the people, not the big polluters".

Due to the significance of this year's federal election, we want Walk Against Warming to be the biggest ever held.

Together, we will remind government that we're doing our bit on climate change. We're working hard to reduce greenhouse pollution. We're saving water and energy. We're buying greenpower. We're forming climate action groups. It's time for the government to do their bit.

We are asking for your help in four ways:

1. Walk on the day: we need a strong turn out to show the Government that we want real action on climate change.
2. Help spread the word: email, facebook or tweet details to friends and colleagues.
3. Donate: Please make a donation today and help support Australia's biggest day of climate action.
